Upcoming Events – Celebrating Spring in the North

(Event dates can sometimes change. To be sure, contact the communities before you travel.)

Springtime festivals across the North bring together residents of the community and visitors to celebrate the end of a long winter and the return of the sun and longer days. Iqaluit, Rankin Inlet and Cambridge Bay are communities that celebrate this annual tradition in style, and Canadian North is proud to be a part of the festivities.

Each festival blends both traditional and modern contests and draws a huge number of participants and spectators alike. There is something for everyone – from igloo building, ice sculpting and harpoon throwing to snowmobile races, scavenger hunts and sea-ice golf. There is no shortage of entertainment and northern hospitality.

Toonik Tyme – April 11-15, 2007

Named after the Tuniit (or Dorset) people legend to be the ancestors of today's Inuit, some believe their ghosts, wearing caribou skins, can still be seen around Iqaluit in the springtime. Toonik Tyme has been celebrated in Iqaluit since 1965 and draws hundreds to take part in the festivities.

Pakalluk Time - May

Held annually in Rankin Inlet, on the western shores of Hudson Bay, this celebration brings snowmobile racers and spectators from across the North along with many traditional cultural events.

Omingmak Frolics - May

Cambridge Bay is home to this annual celebration named for the muskox, literally translated to 'the animal with skin like a beard'. This festival features an ever-changing slate of events that may include a competitive seal hunt, talent show, snowmobile races, children's games, ice chiseling, fishing contests, cooking and tea boiling.

Canadian North invites you to visit Nunavut and take in one of the many festivals. Check our website for seat sales to the festivals, www.canadiannorth.com.

See you there!
